Garden Group Scouts Out Help From Volunteers

The Local Library Is Literally Greening

By Corrie M. Anders

Ordinarily, this is the time of year when most Noe Valley gardeners would be shucking their leather-palm gloves, stashing the shears in the tool shed, and settling back to await next spring's call to plant.

That's hardly the case at the Noe Valley-Sally Brunn Branch Library.

One weekend last month, a cadre of stooped volunteers spent several hours weeding, planting, and laying the base for a gravel garden pathway outside the library at 451 Jersey Street.

Their sweat labor was the latest phase in a yearlong effort to transform several patches of abandoned terrain in the library's back yard into a verdant oasis for

Local Filmmaker Explores Unusual World of Musical Genius 'Trimpin'

By Lorraine Sanders

Sometimes a filmmaker's biggest challenge takes place before the cameras even start rolling. Such was the case for local documentary producer and filmmaker Peter Esmonde, who set out in 2005 to find the most genre-defying, mind-blowing, genius-wielding creative subject he could, for what would eventually become his first feature-length film, Trimpin: The Sound of Invention, screening this month at the Mill Valley Film Festival and the San Francisco DocFest.

"In a culture that values money, efficiency, productivity, and celebrity, I wanted to find an artist for whom the craft is the most important. I needed to find that person at that point in my life," says Esmonde, who studied film at Yale University and the American Film Institute Conservatory and has spent a decade working

How to Raise Hay At the Oct. 24 Harvest Festival

By Olivia Boler

The fifth annual Noe Valley Harvest Festival, the neighborhood entry in San Francisco's street fair sweepstakes, will be ripe for fun on Saturday, Oct. 24. From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., revelers young and old will pour onto 24th Street, which will be closed to traffic from Church to Sanchez streets.

If you've been to the fest in the past, you'll see some familiar attractions: the horse-drawn wagon on 24th Street, kids and pets in costume, a stilt walker, jugglers, live music at two stages, and more than 60 booths filled with arts and crafts.

There also will be a few new treats,

Haunted Happenings Around Noe Valley

By Olivia Boler

No matter what the holiday, Noe Valley is known as a playland for kids and dogs. But on Halloween, that reputation is magnified to the nth degree, when hundreds—maybe thousands—of masked creatures can be seen scampering down the sidewalks bearing buckets of treats.

If you're like most Noe Valley parents, you are probably already under the spell of your little Dracula or Good Witch Glinda. Still, it might

Love Eases Heartbreak After Fire on 27th Street

Family Touched by Support from Friends and Neighbors

By Tim Innes

Lisa Moresco was nearing the end of a sun-baked family vacation in Spain's Costa del Sol region when she got the first email: "Call me right away. I'm with Xander. He's OK. Debi."

The news was devastating: There had been a fire in the family's 27th Street home. The interior was a charred mess. Their clothes, furniture, and appliances were destroyed. But Moresco's 19-year-old son Alexander (Xander) and six buddies who had been sleeping over at the house were safe.

More than 60 emails would follow. In them, friends and neighbors in Noe Valley described firefighters' efforts to contain the blaze and make sure all the young men got out safely. They told of myriad acts of kindness. They offered help and support. Most of all, they expressed deep affection for a family that neighbor

Steeple at St. Paul's Get a Makeover

By Corrie M. Anders

Saint Paul's Catholic Church in Noe Valley is undergoing three months of preventive maintenance to replace the slate tiles that adorn the church's majestic twin steeples.

Work began in August to eliminate a potential safety hazard at the nearly 100-year-old sanctuary, one of the neighborhood's most notable landmarks, at Church and Valley streets.

Father Mario Farana, pastor at St. Paul's, commissioned the repairs after discovering that some of the heavy tiles were "starting to come off" the sharply pitched spires.

"The steeples are essentially in good shape," said Farana, the church's pastor since 1993. "But the slates could be a

I hope you remember me. I'm Tom Maravilla. I owned and operated Mikeytom Market on Church and Day streets. A heartbreaking ending, but all things happen for a reason and I'm now a licensed mortgage broker. Why, you may ask, would I pick this of all times to make this career change? Those of you that remember Mikeytom know that, although the store was small, the product and service was better than any grocery store in Noe Valley. I know that I can assist prospective borrowers with navigating the twists and turns of the loan process in the same way that I ran Mikeytom: With integrity, honesty and service.

The Inconvenient Truth

Editor:

Our community has lost its recycling center, formerly located in the Bell Market parking lot. Now I have to pay carfare to cart my bottles and cans down to a recycling center at Market Street, near the Safeway store. It's inconvenient.

The Whole Foods store representative assured us at a meeting that they would provide curbside recycling. When I recently inquired at their office on 24th Street, I found out there is not going to be a person to collect recycling at the Whole Foods parking lot.

A machine programmed to read CRV labels and bar codes will be substituted. It selectively accepts some cans and bottles, and rejects others. Flattened or crushed cans and bottles are not accepted.

I hardly consider this recycling method a "green solution" to our community's recycling needs.

Folks who bring a volume of flattened material for recycling will not be able to use the machine. We will have to keep using transportation—spend money on carfare or use gas and pollute the planet—to bring our recycling to locations outside Noe Valley. Also, there are some in our community who rely on the extra cash generated from recycling and are unable to travel outside Noe Valley with recycling materials.

The truth is inconvenient, and Whole Foods needs to rethink their policy to serve our community's needs, instead of just touting their corporate "green" philosophy.

Crows Come for Lunch

Editor:

The article by Tim Innes in the September 2009 issue ("A Murder of Crows, or Requiem for a Featherweight") highlighted the problem of the large number of carnivorous birds like crows and ravens, but didn't get to the source of the problem.

The ravens and crows in San Francisco have exploded in numbers because people feed them, and also because of available food in open garbage cans. The raven feeders can be seen (often early in the morning) in Golden Gate Park and at Ocean Beach, surrounded by large numbers of birds. These feeders think that they are doing a kindness, but the end result is a population imbalance, lots of crows and ravens, and few songbirds.

Feeding wildlife—whether it is coyotes, raccoons, crows, ravens, pigeons, geese, ducks, or other animals—is simply not a good idea.

Invaluable Gifts

Editor:

Our family was struck by tragedy, and in its remains we found invaluable gifts, immeasurable love, and a deep spiritual journey. While my husband Gerry and I and two of our children were traveling in Spain this summer, our Noe Valley home caught fire. (See story on page 1 of this issue.)

My college-age son Xander and several friends were asleep in the house in the early morning hours, when flames originating in the sauna triggered an alarm. The teens, shoeless and many in boxers, fled the house safely. Eight fire engines arrived. What remained was very little of our home. When we returned, we were unable to come back to 27th Street, where many of our most treasured possessions lay in ruins.

Still, we are thankful.

We have lived and worked in Noe Valley for over 15 years and are deeply thankful for the talent and dedication of the San Francisco Fire Department. We are thankful for our many friends and neighbors who on the day of the fire rallied to comfort the boys, took the necessary steps to secure the house along with the Fire Department, carted out and stored away many salvageable valuables, and supported Xander until our return.

We returned to an overwhelming and heartfelt outreach. The support, help, and love we received became a mighty and transcendent force.

Noe Valley is a special community and we look forward to moving back soon.

24th Street Whole Foods Opens

After more than seven months without a major grocery store, large crowds of Noe Valley shoppers greeted the Sept. 30 opening of Whole Foods Market on 24th Street. San Francisco beat police officer Lorraine Lombardo estimated 200 or so locals—and three protesters—watched the breaking of an eight-foot-long sourdough bread loaf that subbed for the traditional ribbon-cutting. An invitation-only preview party five days earlier also drew throngs to the store, which Angela Lorenzen will manage. More than a few people at the opening were in a "quandary" because of the widely publicized anti-health-care stance of Whole Foods chief executive John Mackey. San Francisco supervisor and mayoral candidate Bevan Dufty told the crowd he had sent Mackey a letter urging him to "consider alternative views as you seek to expand your work in our great city." jSanchez Street resident Leslie Willbaum expressed similar sentiment as she manned a makeshift protest table on the sidewalk in front of Whole Foods. But Willbaum acknowledged, "Noe Valley is not going to boycott this place. We've been waiting too long." —Corrie M. Anders

A Refuge from The Road

City Tries Out a Mini-Park Where Guerrero Meets San Jose Avenue

By Heather World

Neighborhood moxie and city initiative have turned a confusing patch of roadway at the southeastern edge of Noe Valley into a plant-filled mini-park.

"Guerrero Park" opened last month for a two-month trial, and already parents with children, St. Luke's Hospital visitors, and coffee lovers are stopping by to sit and enjoy the flowers. Protected from the roadway by a barrier made of five-foot-tall steel tubes and tree stumps, the 11,000-square-foot plaza is surprisingly peaceful.

"People have been enjoying it in the evening with their kids and with dogs," says neighbor Will Reichmann, who lives on San Jose Avenue directly overlooking the new park.

According to neighborhood activist Gillian Gillett of the San Jose/Guerrero Coalition to Save Our Streets, a pedestrian-friendly public space has long been needed to replace the concrete triangle at the intersection of Guerrero, 28th Street, and San Jose Avenue. She says more than a few drivers traveling north on San Jose Avenue have smashed into cars and buildings at 28th Street while trying to decide whether to curve onto the beginning of Guerrero Street or head straight on the spur that ends San Jose Avenue.

The mini-park closes off that spur, which is now accessible only by turning right on the next block, Duncan Street.

"You rationalize the intersection by sending visual cues to the drivers," says Gillett. "You create a public space, and you calm the traffic."

The new mini-park is part of a city initiative called Pavement to Parks, modeled on a similar program in New York City. Initiated by the mayor's office, the program is run by the Planning Department. About 12 projects are scheduled to open this year.

Construction on Guerrero Park started in August and was completed the week after Labor Day weekend.

"We're calling them outdoor laboratories," says project manager Andres Power. The spaces will evolve over time, based on what elements work. Costs are low: The city uses pro bono landscape designers and architects to create designs using surplus materials from city construction projects.

Neighbors pitch in to plant greenery at a small plaza recently created to replace the concrete triangle at Guerrero, San Jose Avenue, and 28th Street. A local cafe has also put out tables and chairs. Photo courtesy Andres Power

For the Guerrero Park plaza, the $20,000 price tag was paid by a $15,000 donation from California-Pacific Medical Center/St. Luke's Hospital and a $5,000 grant from Safeway.

Power says the city looks for donations from corporate entities that have a geographic connection to the space.

"We're looking for people who want to be good stewards," he says.

The San Jose/Guerrero Coalition itself has a history of good stewardship in the neighborhood. Neighbors dug out the concrete medians and planted trees and shrubs to more attractively divide the four-lane road.

In 2005 the group used a neighborhood improvement grant from Oakland's Metropolitan Transportation Commission to hire urban designers from a New York non-profit dedicated to improving and expanding public spaces. The Project for Public Spaces designers suggested greening the roadway and drew up plans. The Coalition published the drawings on its website, and in the summer of 2006 the design shared a San Francisco Street Renaissance award with the Octavia Boulvard/Hayes Valley Neighborhood Association.

"This idea was wildly popular," Gillett says.

The city liked it, too. Pavement to Parks sites are partly chosen based on a history of community involvement, thereby building on existing planning efforts or neighborhood visions, Power says.

"That's what allows us to go quickly," he says.

The San Jose/Guerrero Plaza took about three months to build. Landscape architect Jane Martin created a border with the stainless steel tubes (former air-duct tubing from the Joe DiMaggio clubhouse in North Beach), which were bolted to the ground and filled with plants. Logs from fallen trees in Golden Gate Park were joined together and planted with excess shrubbery from the park's nursery.

Cup o' Java, a cafe across Guerrero Street, now brings over bistro chairs at 6 a.m. and takes them back at 10 p.m., says Lorena Olivas, who works at the cafe. A half-dome climbing wall for children and WiFi for the adults are in the works.

Gillett also hopes to get tai chi classes organized for Sunday mornings.

As for car noise, Gillett says she guesses most people won't choose to be in the plaza during morning and evening rush hours. The area is quiet by city standards the rest of the day, she says.

Meanwhile, she believes cars are already being calmed. "It's obvious when you're here that traffic is slowing down."

Like all Pavement to Parks projects, the site has an initial two-month permit with an option to extend four months, Power says.

"There's a series of checks in which we'll go back to neighbors and talk about what might need to change, what works well," he says. "The idea is for the space to evolve over time."

Teens Lend a Hand In Library Garden Restoration

birds and bees and, of course, humans.

The garden, which went to seed after the branch was closed in February 2006 for two years of seismic renovations, is 75 percent complete. The work will continue through the end of the year.

One of the volunteer gardeners, Lisa Erdos, was surprised when she first saw the outdoor space late last year.

"The entire area was full of weeds," she said. "There were three redwood tables that looked ancient, and there were some old planter boxes that were rotten and pretty disheveled."

The notion of redoing the landscaping originally cropped up in November, when two stalwart friends of the library, 24th Street resident Eleanore Gerhardt and Kim Drew of Duncan Street, pulled together an ad hoc group of professional and neophyte gardeners. They included Chris Weiss, a landscape architect, who drew up design and architectural plans; Jonathan Silverman, who has a background in landscape construction; master gardener Barbara Cohrsen; gardener Tuck Johnson, and Erdos, who took up gardening after losing her job of 30 years.

The group, calling itself the Noe Valley Library Garden Group, got busy. So far, the volunteers have filled the library's east and west yards with more than nine dozen plants of drought-tolerant flowers, dwarf fruit trees, ornamental plants, herbs, and vegetables.

Much of the fresh foliage resides in two raised planter boxes that were built by Boy Scouts from Noe Valley and Japantown. The scouts also constructed picnic-style tables and benches.

"I was really impressed with the Boy Scouts," said library branch manager Alice McCloud. The work counted towards the teens' leadership requirements to become Eagle Scouts, the club's highest rank.

Scout Ryan Joe of Japantown's Troop 12 in April took on the project of clearing weeds from the overgrown grounds and building a 9-by-12-foot planter box. On a different assignment, troopmate Connor Wong helped build three redwood tables and two new redwood benches.

The civic project also attracted Castro Street teenager Brian Furney, a scout with Troop 88 in the Forest Hill neighborhood and a senior at Sacred Heart Cathedral Preparatory School. A Noe Valley native, Furney has been going to the branch library for as long as he can remember.

"I knew the library was doing some renovations, and so I stopped by one day," said Furney, 17. A staffer directed him to the garden club.

Furney had no construction skills. But he pulled together six fellow scouts, several adults, and built an L-shaped, 16-by-8 planter box over two days in July.

Because of budget cuts, the library

Rotting planter boxes and terraces overrun with vegetation were what greeted neighborhood volunteers last spring when they set out to spruce up the garden behind the Noe Valley Library on Jersey Street.

branch had not been able to help finance the garden restoration. Furney raised funds on his own. For several hours on July 4 weekend, he manned a table at the 24th Street Farmers Market, seeking donations to purchase supplies. At the end, he'd collected $379 to pay for wood, bolts, screws, and other materials.

"I was very surprised, very pleasantly surprised," he said about the donations. "It was pretty amazing."

The city's Recreation and Park Department has also been supportive, said Drew. "They've allowed us to go into the city nursery in Golden Gate Park and to have our pick of plants," she said. The donations "saved us having to do any significant fundraising."

Last spring, garden clubbers picked up 75 plants, mostly shrubs and trees. And "just last month, we went over and picked out another 40 or 50 plants," said Drew.

Silverman, a naturalist and an organic farmer, provided pots of kale, beets, lettuce, and other cool-season vegetables, which the group planted last month. But no one is quite sure who is going to harvest or enjoy the vegetables.

"The actual plan wasn't to put vegetables there," said Drew. "The goal for the garden was really to have it be drought-tolerant, low maintenance, low water, low everything so that it's beautiful, it's native, and it attracts birds and bees—but does not require a big effort to keep it up."

While not complete, the library deck and garden space is open to the public. Visitors, however, should use caution because the wooden fence along the south wall is unstable and guarded with yellow tape.

"It's really in bad shape, an eyesore, and a safety hazard," said Drew. Both the library and the rec department know about it and are "very eager to fix it as well, but it's a matter of finding the budget to fix it."

Over the next two months, the garden club volunteers plan to continue their work, and finish the gravel pathway.

In September, the drought-tolerant plants in the newly installed boxes were beginning to show signs of growth. Photo by Corrie M. Anders

As the project nears completion, Gerhardt remembered the garden from many years ago when "everyone had a little plot...they could grow whatever they wanted and take care of it."

But it was "kind of a mishmash back there," she said. The new, professionally designed garden will have "a nicer feel to it."

The club plans to utilize volunteers to maintain the renovated grounds, and is still looking for volunteers to sign up for certain days to weed and water. The group also is accepting financial contributions. Checks can be made out to "Friends of the Library," with "Noe Valley Library Garden Project" written in the note section. For more information, contact Lisa Erdos at lisa.erdos@att.net or Kim Drew at kkdrew@yahoo.com.

Annual Harvest Fest Shares Its Bounty

says Kathy White, fair organizer and a member of the all-volunteer Noe Valley Association, which sponsors the festival along with dozens of local businesses and residents groups.

"We want to incorporate some things for older children," White says. "To that end, there will be two jumpy houses this year, one with a slide or other kind of feature that will appeal to older kids."

Jumpy? Pay a Dollar

The jumpy houses, face-painting, pumpkin patch, caricaturist, and balloon artist will all be on Vicksburg Street, and this year you'll need tickets to participate. These will cost $1 and can be purchased at the information booth near the main stage at 24th and Church streets or at a ticket stand on Vicksburg. White says the activities cost one ticket each, and "the monies raised go towards entertainment for the festival. Any additional proceeds are given back to the neighborhood by way of greening projects and/or benches along the 24th Street corridor."

The horse-pulled wagon, aka the hayride (although there's been very little hay in recent years that wasn't eaten by the horses), will operate from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Passengers can line up to giddyup on Castro Street in front of Walgreen's. The hayride is sponsored by the Noe Valley Merchants and Professionals Association.

Rock and Flamenco

Main-stage music, says volunteer impresario Andrew Keeler, kicks off at 10:15 a.m., with a performance by the Alphabet Rockers. Guitar riffs will make way for dance moves at 11 a.m., when the James Lick Middle School Dance Program appears. Wee the Band, a rock/pop band with female vocalists, plays at 12:15 p.m., followed by hula hoop star Stefan Serafina (1:15 p.m.). At 2 p.m., the Lovitt/Page rock band will take the stage. Then it's the flamenco dance troupe Gypsy Tease, accompanied by flamenco guitarist Ryan Garcia (3 p.m.). Go Van Gogh, describing itself as "country music, but we're not sure which country," will close out the festival at 4 p.m.

Keeler is also organizing contestants for the festival's pie-eating contest, sponsored by Noe Valley Bakery. Those who like to consume baked goods at lightning speed and in copious quantities should sign up for the 3:15 p.m. event at the main stage on Church.

Costume Contests for Kids & Dogs

If your child or pup is coming to the fair dressed for Halloween, be sure to partake in the annual costume contests. The children's contest takes place at 11:30 a.m., and dogs will strut their stuff at 1:30 p.m. Noe Valley cartoonist and comedian Michael Capozzola will emcee the day.

One thing festival-goers might have noticed in past years is the absence of food booths. That won't change this year, as the Association hopes people will buy food at local shops or restaurants. As at previous fests, the Noe Valley Farmers Market will remain open all day, and there will be food stalls in the lot, as well as a second venue for music.

Richard Hildreth, who is on the Farmers Market board, says the "musical entertainment [will be] a diverse lineup, from the jazz/folk artist Damond Moodie to the faithful early-20th-century jazz of the Ragtime Skedaddlers to the pièce de résistance, a group of 14-year-old girl rockers from San Francisco, the SHE's, who are really going to be something someday soon."

First-Ever Bake-Off

Another contribution from the Farmers Market will be the Noe Valley Bake-Off, a contest for local (and Market) cooks. There won't be any categories, so raid your recipe box for anything from breakfast to dessert. Noe Valley merchants Cooks Boulevard, Omnivore Books on Food, and Phoenix Books, as well as the Farmers Market, will provide prizes.

"The idea is to share our neighbors' knowledge of how they prepare the bounty that the Noe Valley Farmers Market is known for," says Hildreth. "Everyone who shops at the Farmers Market is doing something wonderful with the produce, and it would really be something to share these recipes, not to mention the actual dishes themselves."

Always Family-Friendly

White believes the Noe Valley Harvest Festival stands out from other San Francisco street fairs because it's so family-friendly. "In my mind, the other fairs are geared toward adults, and the children are forgotten, and that's what makes ours different," she says. "A lot of items at the festival, like the bands and the arts and crafts, are geared towards the family. And the date is close to Halloween, which is all about children. They get to dress up and be crazy once a year, and that's really fun."

If you want to find out more, check out the fair's website, www.noevalleyharvestfestival.com. And if you're interested in volunteering, contact White at kathyw@realestatesf.com. White says some schools will give students extra credit for volunteering, so they should check in with their teachers to find out about participating in the festival.

Nelson May Have Stumbled into Streetcar

remains a mystery. However, police investigators believe he stumbled, fell, and was hit by the departing train.

According to a Muni statement, video from a camera aboard the light-rail vehicle shows a man believed to be the Noe Valley resident getting off a southbound S-Castro car at 9:08 a.m. and walking 20 to 30 feet beside the train until he disappeared from view. Though the video suggests that some passengers might have seen Nelson fall, Muni said no one alerted the operator, nor did the operator report hitting anything.

"We've closed the case and turned it over to the district attorney and medical examiner," said Inspector Jeff Clark of the San Francisco Police Department's Hit-and-Run Detail. "There was no criminal act; it appears to have been an accident."

As of Sept. 30, the medical examiner's office had not announced a cause of death. Muni was conducting its own investigation.

Nelson had lived in his Sanchez Street apartment for some 25 years, according to landlord Louis Pagan. For the past 16 years, Nelson was a member of Sign and Display Local 510, helping build and install trade show exhibits at Moscone Center and other convention venues around the Bay Area.

"He was a good guy," said Josh Ende, a union field representative.

Previously, Nelson—a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa., and a lifelong Pittsburgh Pirates fan—worked as a chef and hotel concierge and owned a restaurant.

Survivors include his mother, Elizabeth Nelson, of Danville, Ky., and a brother, Kenneth Nelson, of Chicago.

Services were held Sept. 17 in Danville, followed by burial in Mount Sterling, Ky.

Favorite Haunts on Halloween

help to know the best neighborhood spots to celebrate the festivities. Here are a few highlights of All Hallows' Eve, Noe Valley-style.

Treats on 24th Street

Generous spirits all, the Noe Valley merchants along 24th Street will be handing out candy beginning on Friday, Oct. 30, when the students from St. Philip's School march down the hill, clothed in costumes from spooky to adorable. The next day, on Halloween itself, 24th Street (and Church and Castro streets) will again be filled with spider webs and Snickers, as the stores entice trick-or-treaters from all over the city, starting at 4 or 5 p.m.

The Ark, Just for Fun, and Small Frys are among the dozens of shops on 24th that delight in filling children's bags on Halloween. Many owners and employees also have fun with their costumes. "I always get dressed up, and so do the girls who work here," says Heather Bruchs, owner of Urban Nest, on 24th near Sanchez Street. Her go-to costume? "A hot pink wig that's a foot and a half high and a hot pink dress, but I might change it up this year." Urban Nest expects to hand out a ton of chocolate and other "sweet chewy things. We go through about 10 gigantic bags," Bruchs says.

Gwen Sanderson of Video Wave says she and her staff will dress in costume and hand out candy, too, as will other Castro Street stores like Cover to Cover and Peekabootique. As a longtime member and past president of the Noe Valley Merchants Association, Sanderson knows

Our crystal ball tells us that droves of costumed kids will arrive on 24th Street come Oct. 31, and some will even wear whiskers. That's because Noe Valley's the place to see and be seen on Halloween.

that children make a beeline for "Downtown Noe Valley." "Noe Valley is known as a safe place for families to visit on Halloween, and we get visitors from other neighborhoods, too," says Sanderson.

Free Pet Portraits

If your dog or cat insists on wearing a costume this year, stop by the Noe Valley Pet Company on the corner of Church Street and Cesar Chavez for a free Halloween pet portrait. On Oct. 31 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Pet Poses Photography will be snapping photos in honor of its fifth anniversary. No appointment is necessary, and you can call 846-9983 for more information, or check out the Pet Poses website at www.petposes.biz.

Tales of Hoffman

Marilyn Lucas, the "Haunted House Lady," along with many of her neighbors along Hoffman Avenue between 24th and Alvarado streets, will welcome trick-or-treaters from 5 to 8 p.m. on Halloween night. "Look for the haunted car parked in front," she says.

The bewitching inventor of the fun and safe Halloween, Lucas brings a "lifetime of Halloween experience" to her ghoulish activities. Each year, her creepy cottage in the 300 block of Hoffman has a new theme. This year, it will be transformed into Ratworld, featuring her mechanical rat Ratty. Says Lucas, "The little ones love it when he chases them."

If you're worried that your tyke might get too scared, Lucas assures the Voice there are frights in her haunted house that are "rated G. But when the older kids start to say, 'Oh, that's so phony,' or, 'That's not scary,' I kick it up a notch!"

What's up a notch?

"A walk through the gutters...." Lucas whispers, "where the skeleton of a..." (Her words were too horrible to repeat.)

As for what her neighbors are planning, Lucas says be prepared for surprises. "It gets really outrageous here," she says, noting that two of her neighbors (phantoms, no doubt) have designed sets for operas.

Lucas says the Hoffman crew will give away 200 treat bags, and there will even be little books or toys, for kids whose parents prefer they not have sugar.

Frightening Fair Oaks Street

If your intrepid trick-or-treaters cross Dolores Street to the picturesque Fair Oaks Street, they'll be sweetly rewarded.

Sherri Maurin, treasurer of Fair Oaks Neighbors, says, "We do an extraordinary Halloween celebration on Fair Oaks. We close the street [from 21st to 27th streets] in the evening, and hire older students from Jamestown Community Center, which we have supported for more than 20 years, to monitor the crossings and keep everything safe. Many homes are fully decorated, and we give out hundreds and hundreds of pieces of candy. I stopped counting at 1,500 pieces last year."

According to Fair Oaks Neighbors chair Mary Louise Beecroft, there will also be a haunted house which ghost-hunters can tour for a small fee. Festivities on Fair Oaks Street start around 5:30 p.m.

So dust off your witch's hat or Chewbacca mask and get out there with your little mermaid or pirate, Noe Valley. It's your night to cackle. ■

A Fun and Safe Halloween

By Marilyn Lucas,
"The Haunted House Lady"

Here in Noe Valley
A long time ago
Halloween was kinda fun
But the day went really slow

All day we sat at school
Waiting to get dressed
We were all so monstrous
In our Halloween best

We lined up by classes
And paraded all around
But as soon as school was over
We were homeward bound

We had to eat dinner
And do our homework
It's fun to get ready
But it's still a lot of work

Candies in the bowl
Witches in the window
Lights on the porch
Goblins in the kitchen

Children are begging
Isn't it time to go?
As soon as it's dark
Out the door we go

We must only Trick or Treat
At houses we know
Always checking our candy
With our families at home

This is the Halloween season
Have Fun
Be Safe
And always use good reason!

Family Finds Solace in Support from Friends And Neighbors

Kathryn Woods calls "a hub in the neighborhood."

The Aug. 8 fire, which erupted in the sauna, triggered smoke alarms that roused Xander and his friends from their beds. The young men scrambled out, some of them wearing only their boxer shorts.

According to investigators, the sauna was apparently switched on inadvertently and something—perhaps a magazine—that was left too close to the heating element caught fire.

Assured that Xander was safe, Lisa, husband Gerry Agosta, 16-year-old son Rio, and 8-year-old daughter Sophia prepared for their return to San Francisco. It was not how their three-week holiday in Marbella, where they are partners in a restaurant and nightclub, was supposed to end.

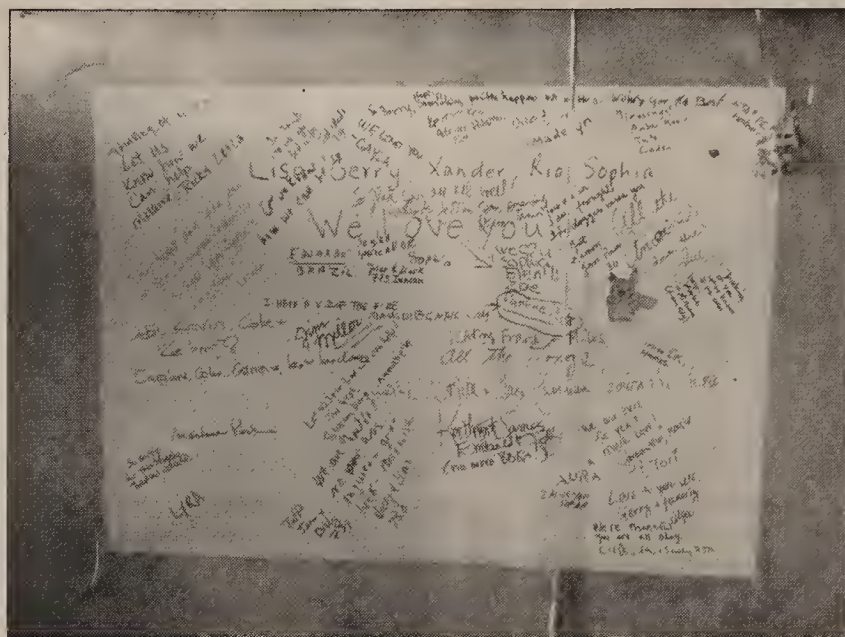

The scene they returned to was heart-breaking. The modern wood and glass house they had built less than two years earlier was a burned-out shell.

"I had trouble processing what I saw," says Moresco. "I couldn't really believe what was happening."

But she could also see how members of the Noe Valley community had come together to help. From Xander she heard how next-door neighbors Gus Murad, Matt Sánchez, and Ramon Lim had assisted firefighters. How Murad had taken Xander, who had fled the burning house in his underwear, to Mission Street to buy him clothes and shoes. And how builder Mike Cassidy had boarded up the house after the fire was out.

Word of the blaze spread, well, like wildfire, among the family's wide network of friends and acquaintances. Both Moresco and Agosta are well known in Noe Valley and the Mission—she from her 15 years operating Natural Resources, a pregnancy, childbirth, and parenting resource center, and he from Buena Vista Builders, which has constructed dozens of homes in the neighborhood over the past two decades.

Friends like e-mailer Debi Skaggs

Lisa Moresco, Gerry Agosta and family were showered with kind words and offers of help after their home on 27th Street was severely damaged in a fire on Aug. 8. Photos by Tim Innes rushed to the house, offering warm clothing to Xander's friends and helping them get in touch with their parents. They got the car out of the garage and helped Xander remove anything that could be salvaged. Among the treasures taken to Murad's garage for safekeeping were the children's memory boxes, artwork, photos, and journals, and the Buddha statue that had guarded the front door. Another friend, Kathy Bruin, taped posterboard to the garage door so people could leave messages of encouragement; many did.

Offers of housing poured in. Four homeowners (including two from Noe Valley) to whom Agosta had sold houses offered to put the family up in their homes. In the end, the family took temporary shelter at 24th and Grand View. They are now renting an apartment on Russian Hill while their house is being rebuilt. They hope to be back on 27th Street by next fall.

Acts of kindness continued. Chris Cosentino and Mark Pastore of Incanto, which Moresco calls "our kitchen away from home," treated the family to a feast. "They brought food, they brought wine, they hugged us, they kissed us," she says. "The whole staff poured love on us."

Preschool operators Julia Reddy and Debra King, along with longtime friend Carrie Holder, took up a collection, which was matched by Hayes Valley merchant Lemon Twist, to help the family replace clothing. Contributors included "old friends, some of whom we hadn't seen in years, and people we didn't even know," says Moresco.

She's been trying to return the favor by spending insurance money at neighborhood businesses, but even that's proving difficult. One merchant still hasn't cashed the check Moresco wrote for some new clothes for Sophia.

Despite the loss of the home he built with the help of Xander, who's now attending Lake Forest College in Illinois, Agosta counts his blessings.

"The first thing Lisa and I realized is that within the grand scheme of things, we have lost little.... Our children are here and well today. The rest is stuff, and most of it can be replaced, and of what cannot, we have memories."

He's thankful for the professionalism and bravery of the Fire Department, calling the crew from the firehouse on 26th Street "amazing." He says he's "glad we have such talented people working on our behalf."

Agosta praises his insurance company ("I never thought I'd say that," he jokes) for making it possible for the family to rebuild their lives—along with their home.

And he thanks his friends and neighbors. "It still strikes me as amazing how quickly the news spread and how fast everyone assembled at our home," says Agosta. Their help and support "reflects a deep sense of community. We feel well taken care of."

In discussing the fire and its aftermath, Moresco, Agosta, Woods, and Skaggs return again and again to the special sense of community in Noe Valley. It's a place, Skaggs notes, where neighbors look out for one another, where residents fight to save their library, children's playgrounds, and senior services, and support a thriving farmers market.

"It's such a great place to raise a family," says Woods, who has lived in the neighborhood since 1983. "It is a cohesive community in the good times and the bad. We want [Lisa and Gerry] to rebuild and come back home."

Eviction Done, But 'Blue Church' May Sit for a While

The controversial Church of San Francisco at 28th and Church streets is now an empty shell, following the eviction of Pastor Joe-siah Bell and several followers last month. A half dozen Sheriff's deputies cleared the building Sept. 23 after the "Blue Church" lost its final appeal in Superior Court. Workmen for the owner immediately boarded the doors and windows with plywood.

The church had been embroiled in a three-year dispute with its former business partner, J. Branch Developments, Inc., a firm that plans to build six condominiums on the site. Because of weak economic conditions, developer James Branch says he won't start construction for 9 to 10 months. He has been asking neighbors if they prefer to see the building razed immediately, with the corner becoming a vacant lot, or whether the rundown building should remain until construction starts. No decision had been reached at press time.

Tracking the Elusive Trimpin

kept popping up," Esmonde recalls, remembering a conversation with San Francisco artist Camille Utterback, who, like Trimpin, is a MacArthur Fellow—the recipient of a “genius grant” from the MacArthur Foundation.

Trimpin, 58, is a Seattle-based sound artist and inventor who only uses his last name. He's best known for creating highly complex installation projects, such as a 60-foot tower of self-tuning electric guitars made for Seattle's Experience Music Project, and a giant Seismofon, installed in the Minnesota Science Museum, which uses software algorithms to convert real-time seismic data from earthquakes into music.

Finding Trimpin was relatively easy, says Esmonde. Convincing him to take part in a film about his life and work wasn't.

“It was basically like the naturalist stalking the wildebeest,” quips Esmonde.

Trimpin is notoriously publicity-shy and wary of the commercial art world. Despite his critical success—he's also a Guggenheim Fellow—Trimpin has never been represented by a gallery or recorded his music for commercial purposes, nor does he have a dealer, manager, website, or even a cell phone.

But Esmonde persisted, traveling to visit the artist in his funhouse of a studio, piled high with all manner of reclaimed objects waiting to become the moving parts of Trimpin's next project.

“Getting Trimpin's trust, that took some doing. That was a hurdle,” Esmonde says.

Eventually, and with much coaxing, the artist agreed to take part in the film. Esmonde's next challenge? Actually filming Trimpin, who moves constantly and without warning from object to object, much like a bearded butterfly in a flower garden. Esmonde chose to use a handheld camera and a direct cinema approach for the film. Nothing was scripted, staged, or reshot.

“He's very much somebody who is looking at things on the fly. That handheld approach gives that sense of immediacy. And to try to set up a tripod in that guy's studio and try to have him stay within the frame would have been impossible,” Esmonde says.

Filed over a two-year period, the documentary follows Trimpin as he collaborates with the members of the San Francisco-based Kronos Quartet. During the shoot, Trimpin journeys to his childhood home in Germany's Black Forest region and constructs various projects, including a perpetual motion sculpture and a gallery-sized bamboo pipe organ “played” by infrared sensors.

As Esmonde films, Trimpin fashions everything from slide projectors to wooden clogs into instruments playing scores controlled by wizard-like feats of software design. He also leads the Kronos Quartet (David Harrington, John Sherba, Hank Dutt, and Jeffrey Zeigler) on a road that ends in a world premiere concert, featuring plastic toys and mo-

Trimpin, the eccentric subject of a documentary by Noe Valley filmmaker Peter Esmonde, is a wizard at manipulating sounds and software, but he prefers not to own a cell phone. Here he poses in front of his art installation Sheng High, which uses reeds encased in bamboo to deliver sound throughout the room. Photo by Matthew G. Monroe tion-activated instruments worn on performers' bodies.

Accompanying Esmonde's own footage are archival photographs, sound recordings of Trimpin's work, interviews with family and colleagues, and video shot by Trimpin's teenage nephew.

The result is a 79-minute portrait of an eccentric, prolific artist, capable of creating large-scale sonic curiosities as technically triumphant as they are conceptually imaginative.

So far this year, Trimpin has played at the South by Southwest (SXSW) film festival, Silverdocs, and the Seattle International Film Festival, among others.

Of course, for Trimpin the man, outcome is largely beside the point.

“He's not interested in a final product. He's more interested in the process...and to me that's fascinating,” Esmonde says.

What's next for Esmonde? Along with watching his film head to festivals throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe this fall, Esmonde is currently at work on a short film about Berkeley musician Ellen Fullman, creator of a giant acoustic instrument called the long string that is played by a walking performer. ■

Trimpin: The Sound of Invention screens at the Mill Valley Film Festival on Oct. 14 and Oct. 16 (Trimpin and Esmonde will be present for a Q&A session). During the San Francisco DocFest, the film screens at the Roxie, 3117 16th Street, on Oct. 24 at 7 p.m. and Oct. 29 at 9:15 p.m.; Esmonde will be present for a Q&A at the Oct. 29 showing. The Cost of Living in Noe

Sales Dry Up In August

By Corrie M. Anders

The purchase of single-family homes in Noe Valley retreated in August after three consecutive months of relatively robust sales. Home shoppers purchased seven homes during the month, according to sales data provided to the Voice by Zephyr Real Estate.

The total represented a significant decrease from mid-year, when energized buyers bought 22 homes in July, 15 in June, and 14 in May. The latest sales also lagged the pace of August one year ago, when 15 homes exchanged hands.

Despite the sluggish activity, however, buyers who closed escrow weren't chintzy. They typically paid a smidgen more than the seller's asking price.

The typical home sold for nearly $1,261,000, about 9.5 percent less than the $1,396,000 average sales price in August one year ago. Two of the seven homes sold for under $1 million.

The most expensive home sold was on the market for 10 days and the new owner paid the full asking price, said Randall Kostick, Zephyr's general sales manager. The $1,995,000 house, with four bedrooms, 3.5 baths, and 2,900 square feet of living space, is located in the 100 block of Hoffman Avenue between 22nd and 23rd streets.

Condominium sales also declined in August. Zephyr reported six deals, compared with nine in July and eight in the same month one year ago. The average price of a condo was slightly more than $833,000, about $50,000 more than the $780,000 recorded one year earlier.

The top-selling unit was on the market for two months and sold for $1,225,000. The four-bedroom, two-bath condo is located in the 500 block of Alvarado Street between Noe and Castro streets. ■

11 Critical Home Inspection Traps to be Aware of Weeks Before Listing Your Home for Sale

San Francisco - According to industry experts, there are physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.

Whether you own an old home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of buyer expectations during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with, any of these 11 items could cost you dearly in terms of repair, delays or willing buyers. That's why it's critical that you read this report before you list your home. If you wait until the buyer's inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or, worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether.

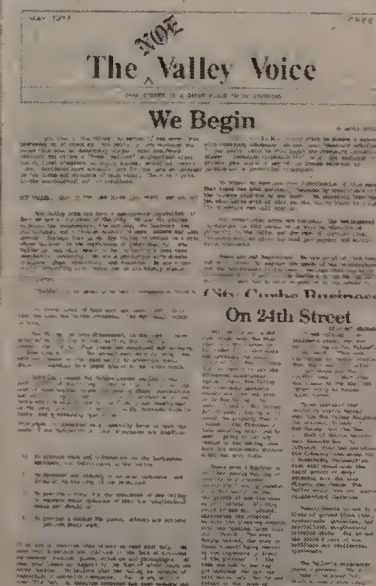

In most cases, you can make a reasonable pre-inspection yourself if you know what you're looking for, and knowing what you're looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help home sellers deal with this issue before their homes are listed, a free report entitled "11 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection" has been compiled which explains the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-596-8310 and enter 1511. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to learn how to ensure a home inspection doesn't cost you the sale of your home.

POLICE BEAT

REPORT FROM MISSION STATION

The following crime summaries were culled from incident reports filed at Mission Police Station. They cover some but not all incidents occurring Aug. 16 through Sept. 15, 2009, in the northern half of Noe Valley, defined as the area bordered by Grand View, 21st, Guerrero, and Cesar Chavez streets. The summaries were provided by Officer Jane Warner of the San Francisco Patrol Special Police.

Aug. 27, 9 p.m., 900 block of Douglass, Theft of Purse: A woman reported setting her purse down on her driveway outside her house to break up a dogfight. When she remembered the next day that she had left her purse outside, she checked on it and discovered it missing. A $500 green Mazzini purse, a Williams leather wallet, a BlackBerry phone, a checkbook, credit cards, all missing.

Aug. 28, 9 a.m., 600 block of Alvarado, Auto Burglary: A Toyota RAV4, parked overnight on a public street, was burglarized. The passenger side window was smashed. A Swiss Army knife, numerous CDs, and about $50 were taken.

Aug. 28, 11:05 a.m. (rptd), 23rd and Castro, Auto Burglary: A Honda Accord, parked on a public street overnight, was broken into. No apparent damage was done to the locked vehicle. However, missing from the interior was a $1,200 Apple laptop computer, backpack, and several textbooks.

Sept. 5, 5:26 p.m., 26th and Church, Stolen Vehicle Pursuit (arrest made): While on routine patrol, Lt. Ed Santos, assigned to Mission Station, observed a green Honda Accord at the intersection of Mission and 24th streets traveling at a high speed. The lieutenant ran the license plate of the vehicle, and the computer query revealed the car had been reported stolen. Making a U-turn, Santos radioed Dispatch his observations, along with a description of the occupant and the car's direction of travel. Several units responded to the area, and officers soon spotted the car southbound on Mission at 23rd. Giving chase, officers pursued the fleeing car as it wound through Capp Street, running stop signs and traveling in excess of 50 miles per hour. As the stolen vehicle neared Folsom and Cesar Chavez, the chase was canceled in accordance with police policy, as supervisors determined the pursuit was becoming too reckless. Officers stopped chasing the vehicle at Folsom and last saw it turn westbound on Cesar Chavez. A short time later, however, Dispatch advised officers a resident on the 1300 block of Noe Street called to report a man driving a green Honda had abruptly parked in front of her house, gotten out of the car, and started running. The resident gave the license number of the car, which matched the car involved in the pursuit. Officers quickly responded to the area and found the suspect walking on Church near 26th Street. They took him into custody at gunpoint. The suspect, 24, was taken to Mission Station, where he was booked for driving a stolen vehicle, driving with a suspended license, and committing numerous traffic violations, including reckless driving and speeding, evading police, probation violation, and an outstanding warrant for $10,000.

Sept. 11, 2:30 p.m., 4000 block of 24th, False Impersonation to Receive Money or Property: A man was alerted by his bank that someone had tried to withdraw funds from his debit account at Bank of America on 24th Street. A representative from the bank informed the man that his social security number had been used and a hold had been placed on his account, pending further investigation by the bank's fraud division. The representative informed the man to file a police report.

Sept. 12, 12:34 a.m., 1400 block of Castro, Commercial Burglary: A man who had just got off the bus observed another man near the corner market at Castro and 25th streets, looking around and acting suspicious. The witness thought this was strange behavior, but kept on walking. Suddenly, he heard a loud crash, looked over, and saw the suspicious man running. Behind him was a young woman running as well. The man called police on his cell phone and gave the dispatcher a description of the two subjects. Officers arrived, searched the area, found the couple near Jersey Street, and detained them without incident pending further investigation. An officer returned to the store to see what had happened and found a metal newspaper rack lying on its side underneath an open window on the side of the building. The owner of the market arrived and conducted a walk-through of the premises. Finding nothing missing or disturbed, the owner told officers that sometimes the window is left open because of the hot weather. Officers transported the suspects, 29 and 17, to Mission Station and charged them with commercial burglary and conspiracy to commit a crime.

Sept. 13, 7 a.m., Eureka and 22nd, Auto Burglary: Insurance and registration documents, phone charger, and car service manual were taken from a locked car while parked on a public street. Owner discovered the car locked; no damage noted.

Tale of Two Districts

Noe Valley is split between two San Francisco police jurisdictions: Mission Police District and Ingleside Police District. With Cesar Chavez Street as the dividing line, Mission police monitor the northern half of the neighborhood, while Ingleside police patrol the southern half. Both districts invite citizens to attend police-community meetings, held monthly. Mission Police District holds meetings on the last Tuesday of the month, 6 p.m., at Mission Station, 630 Valencia Street near 17th Street. Ingleside's community meetings take place on the third Tuesday of the month, 7 p.m. This month, the meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 20, at Ingleside Station, 1 Sgt. John V. Young Lane.

REPORT FROM INGLESIDE STATION

This crime log for Upper Noe Valley—an area roughly bordered by Cesar Chavez, Guerrero, 30th, and Diamond streets—has been culled from newsletters produced by Capt. David Lazar, commander of Ingleside Police Station. The incidents are those that were reported Aug. 16 to Sept. 15, 2009. Please note that the list may not include all incidents occurring or reported during the month. If you would like to receive Capt. Lazar's newsletter, send an email to SFPDInglesideStation@sfgov.org.

Aug. 21, 5:39 a.m., 00 block of 29th, Attempted Burglary: Officer Almaguer and Officer Ng responded to a report of vandalism. They met with the witness, who said that when he arrived at work he heard a loud noise from the kitchen. When he went to see what was going on, he discovered that the rear door to the building had been forced open. The witness returned to the front of the business and saw a man peering through the window. The man left when he saw the witness.

Aug. 21, 7 p.m., 500 block of 29th, Fraud: Officer Archilla met with a woman at Ingleside Station regarding a case of fraud. The victim had been telephoned by a suspect who identified himself as her grandson. The suspect said he had been arrested in Canada and needed bail money. The victim also spoke with other suspects who requested money on her "grandson's" behalf, including one who posed as a police officer. The suspects called back several times requesting more money for attorney fees and other costs. In all, the victim sent several large payments to the suspects.

Aug. 21, 8:51 p.m., 1600 block of Dolores, Burglary: Officer Bernal and Officer Androvich were dispatched to a reported burglary. The officers met with the victim, who said that when he left his house earlier in the day, he noticed that his garage door was open. Upon further inspection, he discovered that his unlocked car had been ransacked and several items had been stolen from the garage. These items included a bicycle, a first-aid kit, and pumps. The victim was not sure if he had left the garage door open overnight.

Aug. 22, 5:18 p.m., San Jose and 30th, Unlicensed Driver: Officer Gardiner stopped a vehicle because the driver was talking on a cellular phone. The driver had never been issued a California driver's license. The vehicle was towed and the driver was cited.

Aug. 22, 6 p.m., 500 block of 28th, Stolen Vehicle: 1991 Toyota Camry, burgundy.

Aug. 27, 10:37 a.m., 1600 block of Guerrero, Malicious Mischief: Officer Curry prepared a report regarding graffiti. Victim's garage door had been marked with a silver marker.

Aug. 29, 9:05 a.m., Day and Sanchez, Investigative Detention: Officer Creed and other Ingleside Station officers arrived on scene where a concerned citizen saw a male subject remove items from one vehicle, enter a public building, and then place the items in a secondary vehicle. The officers detained the subject; however, it was determined that both vehicles belonged to the subject, and the officers were unable to prove the items in question were in fact stolen.

Aug. 29, 7:33 p.m., 30th and Sanchez, Theft: Officer Suslow and Officer Chang were on patrol when they were flagged down regarding a theft from a vehicle. The victim said that she had left her car parked on the street for about two and a half hours. When she returned to it, she saw the driver's side door window had been smashed. She also found that her GPS system had been stolen out of the car.

Sept. 2, 4:44 p.m., 5700 block of Diamond Heights, Burglary: Officer Stansbury prepared a report regarding a residential burglary. Victim's passport, laptop, money, and camera were stolen.

Sept. 2, 3:39 p.m., 30th and Church, Traffic Collision.

Sept. 5, 7 p.m., 500 block of 28th, Stolen Auto.

Sept. 9, 7 p.m., 200 block of 27th, Residential Burglary: Officer Aslam took a report of two stolen bicycles from a garage. No suspects had been seen.

Sept. 10, 9 p.m., 1600 block of Church, Theft from Auto: Lt. Perea responded to investigate a theft from a car. The victim told the officer that he left his vehicle unlocked and his property was subsequently stolen.

Sept. 17, 5:34 p.m., 1800 block of Church, Miscellaneous Investigation: Officers arrived at a home where a resident wished to turn over a suspected explosive device. Proper steps were taken to ensure neighborhood safety. Fortunately, it was discovered the item was not what it was thought to have been.

Sept. 17, 10:15 p.m., 400 block of 28th, Vandalism to Vehicles: Officer Chou took a report on this block, where two vehicles were found with the windows broken and the trunks opened. The owners of the vehicles were not located, and it was therefore unknown whether any items were taken.

SHORT TAKES

Catch the Next Trolley Dance

For the first time in its six-year history, the modern dance festival San Francisco Trolley Dances will roll through Noe Valley, treating riders and onlookers to dance performances along the J-Church line the weekend of Oct. 16 and 17.

Show curator Kim Epifano of Epiphany Productions has clustered seven performances in Dolores and Balboa parks, and the tour will also include a "drive-by" performance in Noe Valley at 30th and Church streets. Anyone can watch the dances from the sidewalk or join the trolley car as it progresses, but to get the full flavor of the festival you should sign up for the entire ride at the Miguel Hidalgo statue near the pedestrian bridge in Dolores Park.

The guided tours, which are $2 (or free with a Muni Fast Pass), leave the statue in the park every 45 minutes starting at 11 a.m., and take 90 minutes to complete. About 70 people can be accommodated on each tour.

Guides will lead their audiences to the mostly outdoor performances, staged by five different ensembles. The dance companies have been asked to choreograph works inspired by the look or history of particular sites along the J-line.

This year, the Epiphany dance group will be joined by the Deborah Slater Dance Theater, fusion company Deep Waters Dance Theater, improviser and choreographer Kathleen Hermesdorf, and the 50-year-old San Francisco Merionettes synchronized swimming club at Balboa Pool.

"Every year, I find this San Francisco historic gem, and the Merionettes is one of them," says Epifano.

In years past, Trolley Dances has traveled the F, T, and N lines. The flow of the performances is helped by the guides, who talk about the history of the sites, Muni's train system, and the performers themselves during lulls between dances.

Because the performances are public, plenty of people not usually exposed to dance get to enjoy them, Epifano says.

"You get families to seniors and everybody in between."

Kids will enjoy their own set of tours on the Friday before the festival weekend. "They have a blast," she says.

Tours are on a first-come, first-served basis, and spots fill quickly, Epifano says. For wheelchair accessibility, please arrive for the 11 a.m. tour. The last tour leaves Dolores Park, at 19th and Church streets, at 2:45 p.m.

For more information, visit www.epiphanydance.org or call 415-226-1139.

Bowser Bash at Upper Douglass Park

If your pooch is planning to dress up for Halloween this year, a chance to get extra mileage out of that costume comes in the form of the neighborhood's third annual Dogtoberfest celebration, taking place on Saturday, Oct. 24, at Upper Douglass Park.

Organized by the Friends of Upper Douglass Dog Park, the free party for Noe Valley dogs and their two-legged friends will include contests for best costume, pet obedience, tricks, and agility.

Along with costumed canines and envy-inducing dog tricks performed by Noe Valley's finest on four legs, the event plays host to nonprofit organizations such as the San Francisco SPCA and the Animal Rescue Foundation, whose members will offer information about programs and services. Attendees will also find treats for both dogs and humans on sale at the event, as well as the services of a pet portrait photographer.

Dogtoberfest will run from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. For the complete scoop, visit the Friends of Upper Douglass Dog Park online at fuddp.org. The three-acre park is located at the corner of Douglass and 27th streets.

Rhapsody Times Two

Lovers of classical music are in for a treat this month as two chamber music series kick off their seasons with renowned artists, intimate venues, and affordable prices.

It's the 17th season for the popular Noe Valley Chamber Music series, which opens Sunday, Oct. 25, with a concert by the Gold Coast Chamber Players, starring violinist Robin Sharp, concertmaster of the San Francisco Chamber Orchestra.

The group's 4 p.m. performance will feature Two Rhapsodies for oboe, viola, and piano by Charles Locffler; Frank Bridge's Phantasy Quartet in F sharp for piano, violin, viola, and cello; Ralph Vaughn Williams' Phantasy Quintet for two violins, two violas, and cello; and Arnold Bax's Quintet for oboe and strings.

The nonprofit Noe Valley Chamber Music launched the series in 1992 to both demystify the classical music experience and showcase established and new local artists. NVCM's Sunday afternoon concerts run monthly through May (except in January) and are held at the Noe Valley Ministry, 1021 Sanchez Street. The Nov. 8 performance will feature the Picasso String Quartet, performing works by Ravel, David Garner, and Mendelssohn.

Tickets range from $15 for seniors and students to $18 for general admission. For information about future concerts, call 415-648-5236 or visit www.nvcm.org.

It's not the Chattanooga Choo Choo but rather the J-Church that will be boarding audiences for the sixth annual San Francisco Trolley Dances held Oct. 16 and 17. Photo by Rob Kunkle

To get an even earlier start on the classical music scene, you might want to attend an Oct. 18 "Music on the Hill" concert in Diamond Heights. After 10 seasons at St. Kevin's Church in Bernal Heights, Music on the Hill this year relocated its chamber music series to St. Aidan's Church, at the corner of Goldmine Drive and Diamond Heights Boulevard.

The music series' first concert of the season, starting at 7 p.m., will feature the Ariel Ensemble, composed of members of the San Francisco Ballet and Opera orchestras. They will perform Brahms' Clarinet Quintet, a string quartet by Debussy, and the Cello Suite No. 1 by Johann Sebastian Bach. Guest dancer Crystal Lee will join the ensemble for works by Piazzolla and Shostakovich. Astage set has been designed by local artist Kurt Stoeckel.

Tickets are $8 for students and seniors and $14 general admission.

For more information about Music on the Hill, call 415-820-1429 or visit www.musiconthehill.org.

Cupcake Tasting for Couples

Cupcakes are the latest wedding craze, and Cooks Boulevard is inviting betrothed couples to taste creative confections from local bakers at "A Cupcake Affair" on Sunday, Nov. 1, at 6:30 p.m.

Bakers from That Takes the Cake, Sweetie Cups, Sugar Beats Sweets, Cups and Cake, Noe Valley Bakery, and Citizen Cake will bring varieties worthy of a wedding, topped with buttercream, ganache, and glaze.

"We want to help those looking for cupcakes find those who make cupcakes," says Sara Eddison, event coordinator and store manager.

The tasting will be at the store at 1309 Castro Street near 24th Street, and Eddison hopes couples will register there for kitchen wares, too. Though small, Cooks Boulevard offers the same online registry that chain stores do, Eddison says.

Interested lovebirds are asked to RSVP

Small Gems from Golden Gate

The group Golden Gate Artists will hold its 10th annual art show at the Noe Valley Ministry during the month of November.

The show, "Small Gems," will feature smaller works of art and will open with a free reception for the public on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 2 to 4 p.m. There will be wine and cheese and other light refreshments, accompanied by cello music by Pawel Walerowski.

The original members of Golden Gate Artists first came together in 1996 in art classes at City College and Sharon Art Studio. "Inspired by one another's art, we met outside of class to draw and sketch each week 'en plein air' [outdoors]," says artist JoAnn Yates.

The group continues to meet every Monday in the Arboretum, the Presidio, Lake Merced, Fort Mason Garden, and other city spots, occasionally venturing to Marin, Sonoma, or Monterey.

Members share information on art exhibitions, materials, books, and lunch. "It is as much learning about painting as about life," says Yates. Newcomers are welcome to join. For information, e-mail joannlyates@gmail.com.

The Ministry is located at 1021 Sanchez Street near 23rd. Paintings will be displayed in the church sanctuary during open hours. Call 415-282-2317 for details.

Behind the Doors of Local Artists

Noe Valley artist Lita Blanc hasn't achieved the notoriety of say, Albrecht Durer, the Renaissance engraver whose work figures prominently in Dan Brown's new novel The Lost Symbol. But Blanc's etchings will be on full display this month as part of the 34th annual San Francisco Open Studios. So will the paintings and sketchbooks of artist Marie Kelzer, who also lives in Noe Valley.

The two artists will join more than 50 painters, weavers, sculptors, and jewelry makers in the 94114 and 94131 zip codes who will open their homes, garages, and studios to the public during the weekend of Oct. 10-11. The weekend also will showcase talent in the Castro, Glen Park, Duboce Triangle, Bernal Heights, the Mission, and Portola neighborhoods.

The event kicks off four consecutive weekends of Open Studios, which is sponsored by the nonprofit ArtSpan and expected to attract 60,000 art lovers.

Blanc has taken part in previous Open Studios. A teacher at George Moscone Elementary School who got started in printmaking 10 years ago, Blanc will show two different series of works in her home studio at 4089 25th Street.

One group features aquatints engraved on zinc plates, whose designs are based on the games at Musée Mécanique at Fisherman's Wharf. Among the realistic portrayals of old-time fun machines is an etching of the zany "Laffing Sal."

"Musée Mécanique has been one of my favorite places in the city and one of the places my kids like," says Blanc, who's lived in Noe Valley for 25 years. "They're haunted by Laffing Sal."

The second set includes colorful monoprints that depict scenes of Provence, France.

Blanc's works are considerably more affordable than Durer's. Her pieces range from $15 to around $200, she says.

Marie Kelzer invites you to see her 28th Street studio, which is chock full with a couple hundred paintings, book-bindings, and artist's books. Her New Age abstract paintings depict everything from "peace of mind" to "light in the age of darkness."

Kelzer, a seasoned artist of 25 years, says her works are priced from $5 for small notebooks to $400 for larger pieces. Her Marie Kelzer Design Studio is located at 238A 28th Street, and will be open both days 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information visit www.mariekelzerdesigns.com. And for a map of all Open Studios locations, go to www.artspan.org.

Art patrons will also have two opportunities this month to view the works of 24th Street artist Marc Ellen Hamel. Fourteen of her abstract oil paintings are on display through Oct. 25 in the back gallery at Nomad Rugs, 3775 24th Street near Church.

Nomad Rugs owner Chris Wahlgren says he was excited to offer the space. "I can't help to think how much Marc Ellen's work reminds me of some of the colorful Gabbeh rugs in the store."

The doors of Hamel's Hunters Point Shipyard studio will be open during Open Studios' fourth weekend of Oct. 31-Nov. 1. That's where the full-time artist says she will display more than 20 pieces of her works, with prices ranging from $250 for smaller canvases to $3,000 or so for larger productions.

Her shipyard studio is located at Building 101, #2507. You can get more information at www.marcellenhamel.net.

Rupa Fishing in Health Care

Many would likely agree with the notion that regular doses of live music are good for the soul, but what about your health? In the case of this month's ¡Catapulta! performance at the Brava Theater, live music promises some very real health benefits indeed.

Created by Noe Valley resident, singer, and physician Rupa Marya, of Rupa & the April Fishes fame, the multimedia arts project brings original music, performance, photography, and sculpture to the stage to raise awareness about the human impact of U.S. anti-immigration policies and to highlight the health options available to documented and undocumented San Francisco residents.

Funded by a grant from the San Francisco Arts Commission, the event grew out of Rupa's ongoing work with undocumented populations in the Bay Area and those living along the U.S.-Mexico border. This spring, Rupa & the April Fishes band members Marcus Cohen (trumpet), Isabel Douglass (accordion), Aaron Kierbel (drums), and Safa Shokrai (upright bass) traveled, along with photographer Lars Howlett, from Tijuana to Texas, documenting the lives they encountered and gathering research for this performance project.

The result is a one-hour showcase of new music by Rupa & the April Fishes and photographs of the band's journey, along with performances by Pan-American circus group Malamana, choreography by Sara Shelton Mann, and sculpture by Carlos Cartagena.

In keeping with its social mission, the event will give away 50 free tickets per night to undocumented people. The concert also will provide health outreach by offering an information table staffed by a physician and an immigration lawyer, ready to answer questions about access to health care in San Francisco.

¡Catapulta! takes place Oct. 9 and 10 at the Brava Theater, 2781 24th St. Tickets ($15) are available at the Brava Theater Box Office (415-641-7657) and online at www.brownpapertickets.com.

Perfect Halloween Reading

Considering that October is one of the scariest months of the year, author Doug Dorst seems like a wise addition to the lineup of writers at the Make-Out Room in the Mission District.

Dorst will read from his novel Alive in Necropolis, which the San Francisco Public Library has picked as its One City One Book selection for 2009. (Residents all over the city will be reading the book this month.)

The book features a young police officer living in nearby Colma, who struggles to keep the peace and maintain his sanity in a town where there are more corpses than sentient beings.

Four other hot writers will join Dorst for the Oct. 10 reading at the Make-Out Room, a bar-club at 3225 22nd Street near Bartlett Street. They include Anthony Swofford, author of Jarhead; Roz Savagem, Rowing the Atlantic; Linda Watanabe McFerrin, The Impossibility of Redemption Is Something We Hadn't Figured On; and Joe Loya, The Man Who Outgrew His Prison Cell.

The organization Writers with Drinks is sponsoring the 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. event. Admission is $3 to $5 with all proceeds to benefit the nonprofit Center for Sex and Culture.

If Dorst's nocturnal reading leaves you gasping for more, you can join him on a free tour of Colma's Holy Cross Cemetery, 1500 Mission Blvd. The San Francisco History Association is sponsoring the tour, which starts at 11 a.m. You can get more information about these events at www.sfpl.org, www.writerswithdrinks.com, and www.sanfranciscohistory.org.

STORE TREK

By Lorraine Sanders

Sore Trek is a Voice feature profiling new shops and businesses in Noe Valley. This month, we introduce a beauty supply store that was among the first businesses to be tapped by Mayor Newsom's new micro-loan program, and a clothing boutique on Church Street which plans to present regular fashion shows.

BUBBLES AND SHAMPOO

3836 24th Street (at Vicksburg)
415-285-2303

A fresh-faced store called Bubbles and Shampoo popped up in July in MadKat Beauty Supply's former location next to the Dubliner Bar on 24th Street.

Painted a pale aquamarine both inside and out, the shop offers complete hair care lines from Redken, KMS, Joico, Rene Furterer, Pureology, Bed Head, Mop, and others, as well as skin care products by Murad, Mario Badescu, and Dermalogica.

There also are Paul Mitchell shampoos for kids and pets, OPI nail polish and nail care tools, Seda France candles, Terra Nova fragrances, waxing supplies, hair curlers, blow dryers, and soy-based Tash cosmetics by Bay Area makeup artist Tasha Delancy.

"I try to bring in things that are really good brands. Everything I bring in I believe in," says owner Claudia Ricarte, a 15-year veteran of the beauty industry.

The wide array of products is thanks in large measure to a $25,000 micro-loan awarded to Ricarte by the San Francisco Revolving Loan Fund (RLF), a program announced in February as part of Mayor Gavin Newsom's economic stimulus plan for small businesses.

Ricarte was one of the first two recipients of loans under the program, which is administered by the nonprofit Working Solutions. Loan acceptance means that business owners must create at least one job for a moderate- to low-income person. Ricarte hopes to fill that job in the coming months with an employee who can perform hair or skin care services at the shop.

"What [the loan] helped me with was helping to buy more merchandise for the store. The more merchandise that you have, the more sales that you can do," says Ricarte.

Ricarte may be new to owning a business, but she's hardly new to the business of beauty—or to her 24th Street location. A licensed aesthetician, she lives above the shop and spent more than a decade working for MadKat (and its previous owner) before deciding to strike out on her own.

Once she secured the lease to the retail space, she replaced the store's glass shelves with kid-friendly wooden ones, reorganized the layout to be more inviting to shoppers, and revamped the shop's inventory. Prices are $2 to $20 for sundry items and top out at about $80, for a few higher-end skin-care products.

One more thing you'll find in the store is not for sale: Willy, a chihuahua-poodle mix who's often lounging near Ricarte's computer. But ladies, you're in luck.

"He loves kids and women. He's a womanizer," Ricarte says.

Bubbles and Shampoo is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

LOFT 1513

1513 Church Street (at 27th)
415-695-0201
www.loft1513.com

If Loft 1513 bears a striking resemblance to the recently closed Arara boutique that once sat on San Jose Avenue, your eyes do not deceive you. Located adjacent to Green Twig Salon in a former residential unit at 1513 Church Street, Loft 1513 is the latest from Arara co-owners and designers Larissa Verdussen and Andrea Lamadora, who joined forces with designer Jessica Summers-Miller to open the Noe Valley boutique in July.

"We three are designers, and we have about 15 to 20 other designers as well. We have a lot of local stuff and a lot of things from Brazil, Costa Rica, and limited small runs. It's nothing you could find at Macy's," says Summers-Miller, whose label iKohl is sold at the store.

While they share an appreciation for handcrafted and unique clothing that doubles as wearable art, each of the shop's three owners offers apparel with a different look and feel.

Summers-Miller's iKohl line ranges from versatile cotton tops made to flatter the body to one-of-a-kind draped pieces that stand out for their raw hems, pin tuck details, and mixture of fabrics and textures. She also has a small selection of clothing for toddlers, including versatile tube-shaped pieces that can be worn as a dress or a skirt.

Verdussen specializes in leather utility belts and whimsical, flowing clothes that reveal the former dancer's love of movement and theatrics. Lamadora's House of Mamasan mixes hip-hop and street-inspired influences with a feminine twist, while her second label, The Black Panther Party, includes T-shirts with images and memorabilia from the eponymous movement's heyday. Each of the designers is available for custom garment orders upon request.

In addition to wearables by the owners, the shop stocks clothing and accessories ($25 to $450) from an assortment of independent designers, including dresses of recycled silk by Audrey Acosta, leather bags by Tuckymama, fleece tops by Kayo Anime Clothing, men's button-down shirts by Callou Designs and Saaz Designs, Aiko jewelry, Sea Pony printed leggings, House of Lore skirts and dresses, vintage re-creations by Kittinhawk, and T-shirts by Stoneybrook.

While the store carries many of the designers Arara once housed, the shop's larger size, high ceilings, wooden floors, and rectangular shape are much better suited for the fashion shows the owners plan to hold approximately every six weeks. A back office allows plenty of room for designers to ready their models for the events, while clothing racks on rope-and-pulley systems let the owners raise clothes high into the air to create more room for onlookers to take in the show.

Another benefit of the shop is its location. Along with increased foot traffic, Loft 1513's owners are enjoying the camaraderie of the surrounding merchants.

"We're all like, 'How do we help each other? How can we be a kind of Church Street community?' You can do that in this kind of neighborhood. We feel right at home," Summers-Miller says.

Loft 1513 is open for private shopping by appointment, and on Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m.

SCHOOL REPORT

This month's report on local public schools comes from Alvarado Elementary School on Douglass Street.

Alvarado Parents Know How to Mingle

By Heather World

Parents of students at Alvarado Elementary on Douglass Street sure know how to make connections. Over the past year, they have partnered with half a dozen companies, which have donated not only cash and equipment but also the sweat equity of their employees.

Some of the businesses are small. Last December, Joanne Kapsack approached the newly opened Just Awesome! board game store on Diamond Street. Awesome co-owner Erik Mantsch set up a hugely successful after-school game club on campus, and this year he's adding a second club. He also donated 7 percent of one week's sales and will do so again this year, starting Dec. 6.

Other companies are big. Steve May's employer, Salesforce.com software systems, donated a database for the school's auction, worth about $15,000 a year. Then, over the summer, May suggested an edible garden for Alvarado. Nine employees spent a sunny Tuesday clearing out flowerbeds, spreading soil and bark, and erecting an entry gate under the direction of garden stewards Mara Sieling and Victor Lubet.

"I think everybody felt satisfied in being able to contribute to a local public elementary school," May said, though the work was physically demanding. "One woman said she isn't going to quit her day job anytime soon!"

Similarly, last year, Zorana Bosnic's proposal to replace playground asphalt with a sustainable garden caught the attention of HOK, the eco-minded architecture firm where she works. Employees helped students and school staff build the "secret garden," rolling in a 1,300-gallon rainwater storage cistern, planting containers, and setting up seats to make the space an outdoor classroom. The company paid $10,000 for the project.

Cynthia Wainwright and Ramona Harvey both work for Levi Strauss & Co. and knew the company asks employees to do community work around May 1 (think 501 jeans). Through HandsOn Bay Area, a volunteer partnering organization, 30

Levi volunteers painted walls, hallways, benches, and the teachers' lounge. They also organized books in Alvarado's library.

In addition, the company generously donated $5,000 for school improvements. Some of the money paid for new stage curtains, and Alvarado's Sampedro family, which runs an upholstery business, sewed up the donated dark denim material provided by Levi's.

Up in the computer lab, Donna Boyer figured she could upgrade the school's outdated monitors by hitting up successful Silicon Valley companies. No such luck. So Boyer picked up the phone and called Green Citizen, a local company that recycles electronics.

Green Citizen takes pains to protect communities affected by recycling waste, and Boyer found it equally interested in helping locally. Sometimes the company receives computers and other equipment that can still be used. After Boyer's call, Green Citizen took 28 cast-off flat-screen monitors, refurbished them, and delivered them to Alvarado.

"The monitors are in top shape, and are 100 percent better than what they replaced," says Tim Smith, chairman of Alvarado's Technology Committee. He said Green Citizen even hauled away the old monitors for safe recycling.

Smith and the other parents know these kinds of partnerships are invaluable, especially in the face of declining state funds. They hope more people—either individuals or businesses—will see volunteering as a great way to connect with their local public school.

To volunteer time, money, or ideas to the city's schools, visit San Francisco School Volunteers at www.sfedfund.org, or contact the school of your choice.

Feeling Chirpy: Glen Potter retired recently after operating Accent on Flowers for 36 years on 24th Street. But it seems Sidney, Glen's parrot, did not. The bird was feeling a little mopey at home, Glen says, so Sidney returned to the shop, at least temporarily. There, he's happy and talkative, Glen reports. Do you think Sidney missed his Noe Valley friends? Photo by Pamela Gerard

Ladybug Ladybug

Lovely things to give and to get!

3870 24th Street, San Francisco, CA 94114. #415 824 5477

Ladybug Ladybug is as much a recognizable staple of Noe
Valley as the moms and dads pushing strollers and walking dogs are.

We are chock full of goodies for kids and adults and have some of the best greetings cards out there to make your friends and family smile.

We try to support as many local companies as we can find, such as: Baby Jak, Slainte bags, Bald
Guy Greetings, & our own line
Lisa's Garden.

You can learn a lot from a chicken.

At Children's Day School, chickens—and eggs—are some of our best teachers. As the only preschool through eighth grade school in San Francisco with an actual farm and organic garden, we've made the environment a core component of a rigorous curriculum that is project-based and integrated across academic disciplines. We're growing minds and more: individuals instilled with a passion for learning and a love for the world around them.

To learn more about our approach to education, visit www.cds-sf.org. Or call Aimee Giles at (415) 861-5432 to schedule a tour to come meet our dedicated educators.

MORE BOOKS TO READ

Tales with Taste

You can learn how to make gingerbread men, women, or babies by picking up a book from this month's list, provided by retiring Noe Valley Librarian Carol Small and Voice speed-reader Karol Barske. Their selections are but a fraction of the books available at the Noe Valley-Sally Brunn Library at 451 Jersey Street (near Castro). The branch is open six days a week; see hours below. When the doors are closed, you can log on to www.sfppl.org and sign up for your favorites. For information, call Branch Manager Alice McCloud at 415-355-5707.

Children's Fiction

- The 26 letters each have one thing to do before they say goodnight in Judy Sierra's read-aloud book Sleepy Little Alphabet. Ages 2 to 4.
- Gingerbread Baby goes to the village to look for a friend, but finds them back at home, in Gingerbread Friends by Jan Brett; recipes included. Ages 3 to 5.
- Mr. Bungle races to be on time to teach school, but everything goes wrong, in Late for School! by Stephanie Calmenson. Ages 4 to 6.
- Judy Goldman's Uncle Monarch and the Day of the Dead tells the story of the Mexican holiday celebrated Nov. 1 and 2. Ages 6 to 8.
- Abigail ("the Great One"), Jacob ("the Pain"), and Fluzzy the Cat reappear in Judy Blume's latest chapter book, Friend or Fiend? Ages 6 to 8.
- The Bill Martin Jr. Big Book of Poetry, edited by Bill Martin Jr., includes almost 200 poems, by authors from Robert Louis Stevenson to John Ciardi. All ages.

Children's Nonfiction

- Andrew Chaikin's Mission Control, This Is Apollo tells the story of the first voyages to the moon. Ages 8 and up.

Books selected by Children's Librarian Carol Small

Adult Nonfiction

- Terry Gould tells the stories of seven journalists who were murdered during their attempts to do investigative reporting, in Marked for Death: Dying for the Story in the World's Most Dangerous Places.
- Zeitoun is Dave Eggers' account of a Syrian-American man who mysteriously disappeared following Hurricane Katrina.
- In Empire of Illusion: The End of Literacy and the Triumph of Spectacle, Chris Hedges claims America is being destroyed from within by its powerful elite.
- The East, the West, and Sex: A History of Erotic Encounters, by Richard Bernstein, examines Western males' obsession with the "exotic" East.
- In Hungry: A Mother and Daughter Fight Anorexia, Sheila and Lisa Himmel discuss their separate and combined problems, and their work toward a solution.
- Ian Halperin considers the last five years of the pop star's life in Unmasked: The Final Years of Michael Jackson.
- Golden Dreams: California in an Age of Abundance, 1950-1963 concludes Kevin Starr's seven-volume history of the state.
- Josh Neufeld, author of the graphic-novel American Splendor, depicts the lives of seven New Orleans residents who survived Hurricane Katrina, in A.D.: New Orleans After the Deluge.

NOTICE TO READERS
California law requires that contractors taking jobs that total $500 or more (labor and/or materials) be licensed by the Contractors State License Board. State law also requires that contractors include their license numbers on all advertising. Check your contractor's status at www.cslb.ca.gov or 800-321-2752.
Unlicensed persons taking jobs that total less than $500 must state in their advertisements that they are not licensed by the Contractors

How to Place a CLASS AD

It's easy. Just type or print the text of your ad, multiply the number of words by 40¢ per word, and send us a check or money order for the total. (Note that a phone number, including area code, counts as one word.) Then mail your ad text and payment, made out to the Noe Valley Voice, so that we receive it by the 15th of the month before the month in which you'd like to advertise. The address is Noe Valley Voice Class Ads, 1021 Sanchez Street, San Francisco, CA 94114. (Sorry, the Voice is unable to accept Class Ads by phone or e-mail.)

10 for 10 discount: The Noe Valley Voice publishes 10 months a year. (We're on vacation in January and August.) If you place the same class ad in 10 issues, you are entitled to a 10 percent discount. To figure your cost, deduct 10 percent from the total amount due for 10 issues.

The next Voice will be the November 2009 issue, distributed in Noe Valley the first week of November.

The deadline for Class Ads is Oct. 15. Note: The issue will be displayed for one month on our website: www.noevalleyvoice.com.

Advertisers should keep in mind that only the first few words of their ad (not to exceed one line) will be set in bold. Also, receipts and tear sheets will be provided only if your order is accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Refunds are not granted unless we have made an error. Thank you for your support.

Back to the Future Again

By Mazaak

STAR MAGIC: THE SECOND GENERATION is what longtime Noe Valleyan Robert Hanfling is calling the space he has rented from Elisa Ining in front of her venerable Health Spa at 4028 24th Street. (The previous tenant was Simply Chic.)

Hanfling, aka "Quicksilver," opened a store called Star Magic (with then-business partner Justin Moreau) at that location in 1979. The pair originally launched the shop under the name Gifts of the Magi in the storefront on the corner of 24th and Noe where Starbucks currently pours.

As neighborhood oldtimers will remember, Star Magic became a true "star" in Downtown Noe Valley. It was a place where amateur astrologers and astronomers, those into astral arts and celestial charts, could mix and mingle while staring into beautiful stones, crystal objects, stained glass, mobiles, toys, and statuary; listening to spacy New Age music while "wow"-ing at the light show on the ceiling and peering into elaborate display cases (which were manufactured by Hanfling's other business, Magic Glass, and distributed worldwide).

In 1982, Star Magic opened another store on Broadway in New York City, which also became an instant success. By 1988, Hanfling and Moreau sold their interest in the business to a New York investor who took over control. Over the next nine years, the "magic" was replaced by "schlock," and the Noe Valley business finally closed in February 1998, with the New York owner being evicted. You can go online to the March 1998 Noe Valley Voice, where Voice reporter Denise Minor tells the sad story under the headline: "Star Magic Now a Black Hole." (FYI, Quicksilver nee Hanfling is and has been, since 2001, producer of San Francisco's New Living Expo as well as the Whole Life Expo in Los Angeles.)

Hanfling ("I prefer to be called Quicksilver") says he and his son Michael are the ones partnering up now, to rekindle the Magic one more time.

"My son and I have rented the space from Elisa for the last three months of the year to create a second generation of our Star Magic gift shop for the 2009 holiday season, and hopefully word will get out and the neighborhood will support this project," says Quicksilver. "Our inventory [will] include more contemporary items relating to ecology and have more natural clothing and a good mix of gift items," he says.

Michael, aka "Three Satza," will be managing the store's daily operations, and Quicksilver says the doors should be open by the middle of October. As for beyond Dec. 31, 2009, "We will see how it goes, and as a gift of our own, we will be giving a 10 percent discount to neighborhood residents who can show us a 94114 or 94131 zip code on their driver's license or ID card."

The store may have a good chance of succeeding on our commercial strip. Yes, it's still Very Noe Valley (VNV).

A VNV HOLIDAY SEASON officially starts on Oct. 24 with the neighborhood Harvest Festival and Street Faire on 24th Street between Church and Sanchez streets. It's sponsored by the Noe Valley Association (NVA), the Friends of Noe Valley (FNV), and the Noe Valley Merchants and Professionals Association (NVMPA). The NVA and NVMPA have invested in some new holiday lighting.

The NVMPA will also be sponsoring the hayride during the festival. The horse-driven wagon will leave Walgreen's starting at 11 a.m. and clip-clop down to Sanchez.

NVMPA "pro-tem" president and NVA chairman Robert T. Roddick has also confirmed that the two associations have obtained the permits and insurance to offer a Harvest Festival bonus: an outdoor screening of Lost in the Fog at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 23, in the "Harry Aleo Parking Lot" (the city parking lot on 24th Street just below Castro).

As anyone reading this column knows, Lost in the Fog was a world-class racehorse owned by an eccentric Noe Valley realtor, Harry Aleo, whose Twin Peaks Properties (across the street from the parking lot) was in business for over 60 years, until Aleo died last year.

Aleo gained national attention for his political window displays, which were and still are a Downtown Noe Valley window-shopper-stopper. Way back in 1959, about 20 merchants banded together and bought the vacant lot (actually, it was the site of a public meeting place which had been demolished) and gifted it to the city. It got turned into a parking lot to help the stores along our commercial strip. Now, thanks to the NVA, it has a mini-park and bulletin board, too.

The movie, by the way, was produced by Noe Valley filmmaker John Corey, who was born and raised here. He heard about the famous sprinter, introduced himself to the owner, and decided to tell the story of Harry and his horse. For those who have not seen the documentary, do mark your calendars and bring some popcorn, a blanket, and for greater comfort, maybe even a collapsible chair.

THE HARRY ALEO STORY also appeared on the front page of the Wall Street Journal's weekend edition for Sept. 19. In a story headlined, "In Left-Leaning San Francisco, There Was Something About Harry," writer Conor Dougherty describes Aleo as "a conservative gadfly known for sparring with his liberal neighbors," and quotes one of Harry's most quoted aphorisms, describing his office as "an island of traditional conservative values in a sea of latte-sipping liberal loonies."

The WSJ story focused on the current efforts of Downtown Noe Valley Realtor Joel Panzer to preserve and archive Aleo's personal effects so they might someday be exhibited in a museum. It looks like the probate case involving Aleo's estate will be finalized sometime around the end of the year. All this personal property and the four buildings owned by Aleo, including his office and adjacent stores (and the private parking lot in the rear of those stores), will be placed in a trust for the benefit of his three children. The trustee is longtime friend Anthony Lyau, who you might remember was the manager of the Noe Valley branch of the Bank of America. Lyau retired from the bank in March of 2005.

According to Panzer and Lyau, they are working to get Aleo's memorabilia added to the Noe Valley Archives. Panzer says he has talked with the curator of the Archives, Bill Yenne, who has been storing papers and artifacts accumulated by neighborhood historian Paul Kantus. (Kantus, who died last November, was the chief organizer of the Noe Valley History Day event held annually at the Noe Valley-Sally Brunn Library.)

When pressed on the WSJ story, Panzer said he realized it might be difficult to find a space in Noe Valley for an Aleo museum. Lyau says by next spring Harry's office will be cleared and put on the market for lease.

Hey, how about renting it to someone who could call the business "Harry's Place" and leave all of Aleo's banners and clippings in the front window?

Or better yet, how about building some water- and vandal-proof display cases on the walls of the parking lot/mini-park and call it Harry Aleo Plaza?

The WSJ writer Dougherty, by the way, was born and raised right here in 94114, and knew of Harry in the olden days.

WHOLE DAY WHOLE FOODS: The bread-breaking ceremony at the grand opening (9:45 a.m., Wednesday, Sept. 30) of Whole Foods was also très Valley-Noe. It was attended by well over 100 friends and neighbors, the press, a score of police officers backing up our 24th Street beat officer Lorraine Lombardo, who stationed herself at the front of the parking lot on her bicycle, and a gaggle of Whole Foods personnel ready to deal with the traffic problems that would be created by the onslaught of 94114/94131 locals who had been anxiously waiting to shop at the store.

The San Francisco Chronicle heralded the event in Andrew Ross' column on that morning's page 1 of the Business section. Ross also reported, "There have been calls by 'Boycott Whole Foods' supporters on Facebook 'to raise a ruckus [at the opening].'" He suggested that the protest might be similar to the "rakes" that was reportedly created by a group in Oakland at a store opening last week. Ross, who lives in 94131—Glen Park now, and used to live in Upper Noe Valley—was there for what appeared would be a demonstration.

Even the Noe Valley Voice had two reporters and a photographer at the event when we learned from our Google Alert that a group called "San Francisco Citizen" was encouraging members and friends to go to the ceremony and protest Whole Foods CEO John Mackey's very public statements about his very conservative approach to health care reform. There were no rakes and no demonstrations. About five protesters did appear on the sidewalk in front of the store, and they peacefully handed out information about the single-payer plan.

Supervisor Bevan Dufty, who was instrumental in coordinating city permits to facilitate reopening the market, spoke very briefly and invited everyone to follow him into the store.

On his way in, Dufty handed Joe Rogoff, who is in charge of Whole Foods Northern California, a letter addressed to John Mackey, welcoming Whole Foods to Noe Valley and expressing appreciation of their commitment to San Francisco. However, writes Bevan, "I am concerned that today's celebration has been affected by national issues related to health care and the employee Free Choice Act legislation pending in Congress." Dufty enclosed the Kaiser Family Foundation report on Healthy San Francisco, and asked Mackey "to reconsider his views."

Of course, 24th Street was jammed that whole day as seemingly thousands of people showed up to shop—or at least survey—the new store.

SHORT SHIRTS: Updating the updates on the opening of Noeteca Café and Wine Bar on Dolores and Valley: yes, it finally got the final-final from city inspectors, and the doors opened on the second day of October, after a six-month permit delay, despite the help of Bevan Dufty....

There are no takers yet for renting the Riki space or the space vacated by GNC on 24th Street, and the real estate agents for those spaces indicate that the only non-food inquiries are coming from people who want to open a yoga studio, exercise gym, or nail salon....

Over at the Streetlight Records building, which is for sale, the broker for the owner says he is getting many inquiries from those who want to open a restaurant or some type of food service business....

Meanwhile, Chris Matthews, manager of Old Republic Title Company, said he was very pleased that he opened the doors for business on Sept. 28, and called it a good move for his office, which used to be located in the Upper Market neighborhood.

We learned at the end of the month that Noe Valley's candidate for "worst man of the year," TV reality show Wife Swap bad boy Stephen Fowler and his wife were moving out of the neighborhood and put their 25th Street Victorian house on the market for $2.8 million. Conversely, the Twitter CEO was putting his SOMA loft on the market for just under $1.5 million and moving to a Noe Valley Victorian.

La Boulange is set to open its new location at 24th and Sanchez sometime around the middle of November, according to co-owner Thomas Lefort, with open hours from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m....

Mi Lindo Yucatan restaurant (which got good reviews from critics and patrons) closed unceremoniously on the last day of September, having been on a month-to-month tenancy and given notice to vacate....

The blogs reported that workers allegedly in Real Food's to prepare for a reopening were in fact there only to replace some broken windows and ugly writings on the storefront. They were gone within two days....

A dance studio looks to be opening in the space vacated by Andiamo on corner of Diamond and Elizabeth streets.... And yes, that was folksinging icon Pete Seeger and friend Carmen Mendieta spending a relaxing Indian summer afternoon at Savor, then paying a visit to Noe Valley Music, and finally browsing and chatting with the staff at Phoenix Books and Records.

Finally, it was quite awesome how quickly Just Awesome Games moved out of its Diamond Street store after co-owner Erik Mantsch sent the Voice a message on Sept. 30, announcing that the board game store "will be moving during the month of October," because "fate has extended us the opportunity to grow and relocate the store to a different location, and with our current situation this is something we can't pass up."

When contacted later that day at the store on Diamond, where business seemed to be normal, Mantsch said he was not able to say exactly when or where the store would move, but hoped he could stay in Noe Valley. The next day, Oct. 1, the store was empty, with only a note on the door telling people where to inquire about their gift certificates.

SHOULD HAVE SEEN IT COMING: The calm in Downtown Noe Valley was shattered a minute after two o'clock in the afternoon of Sept. 11. Witnesses report that a Jeep pulled up in front of Nina's Fortune Telling salon, which opened last month on 24th Street near Noe, and two women got out of the vehicle, rushed into Nina's salon, and started slapping her face and screaming. Somebody phoned 911 and a police car came upon the scene about a minute later. The officers broke up the fight, detained and cited the two perpetrators, and sent Nina to San Francisco General Hospital. She returned to the shop about three hours later, seemingly all right.

According to police reports, Nina Stevens told them there was an ongoing family feud over two separate psychic shops owned by the family. Evidently, the two women charged in the assault have a psychic shop down near 24th and Mission, and they were upset that Nina opened her shop so close to their shop. A hearing on the criminal charges has been continued to November.

It appears that Nina's family also filed, four days later, a petition against the two women for civil restraining orders in Superior Court to stop the "harassment," and they have obtained a temporary restraining order pending the November hearing.

According to San Francisco Police Inspector Gregory Ovanessian, who happens to be a nationally recognized expert in the psychic businesses field, there is an unwritten rule that psychics will not compete with other psychics within a three-block radius. In San Francisco, says Ovanessian, all psychics must be registered with the Police Department and only then can they give readings, obtain a business license for the location, and post their fees on the wall.

THAT'S 30 for this month, folks. See you all at the Harvest Festival or at the horse movie. Ciao for now.

New Tiles for Spires at St. Paul's safety hazard. Heavy strong winds that shoot off Diamond Heights can be fierce at times, and we don't want anyone to get hurt."

The two asymmetrical icons atop the English-Gothic church can be seen throughout Noe Valley. The steeple on the north side of the church rises some 200 feet into the air. The south tower is slightly shorter. Each is topped with a cross.

Scaffolding has been placed around the exterior of the church, both to protect passersby and to aid workers. Lawson Roofing Inc. was the low bidder on the $600,000 project, which calls for removal and replacement of all of the tiles.

Farana says the church, which has about 1,300 families on its membership rolls, will remain open while the repair work is being performed.

"The project should be finished, God willing, by Christmas," he said.

Construction of the church was started in 1897 and was completed in 1911. The spires—embellished with slate tiles imported from a quarry in Vermont—are among the building's most prominent features.

The church last underwent renovation nearly a decade ago in the wake of a San Francisco city ordinance that required seismic upgrading for many unreinforced masonry buildings. As part of the retrofit, the roof and attic were strengthened with more than 50 tons of new steel.

That seismic work started in January 2000 and shut down St. Paul's for one year. The church reopened in December 2000—in time for parishioners to celebrate Christmas mass.

Next month, St. Paul's will hold an auction/dinner-dance as part of ongoing fundraising efforts to help finance church repairs. Auction items include a seven-day Hawaiian vacation for four people and two footballs that former San Francisco 49er stars Joe Montana and Jerry Rice have signed.

"We'd like all of our neighbors to come," said Katy O'Shea, director of the church's capital campaign. O'Shea said she expected more than 200 people to attend the $65 dinner-dance, set for Nov. 14 at Patio Español restaurant, 2850 Alemany Blvd.

The fundraiser runs from 6 to 11:30 p.m. For more information, contact O'Shea at 415-648-7538 or visit the church website at www.stpaulsf.org. ■

Into Thin Air

In early September, Voice photographer Najib Joe Hakim captured a crew of workers from Nor-Cal Scaffolding, Inc., erecting ever-higher platforms until they reached the cross atop the south spire of St. Paul's Church at Church and Valley streets. Their remarkable ascent was part of a $600,000 project to replace worn tiles on the building's twin steeples. (See story, starting page 1.)
